Alison Hein November Art Show Judge

Alison Hein resides in rural North Dakota, and has worked as an art educator for the last several years. Most recently, Alison worked as an adjunct drawing instructor at Bismarck State College. She also has taught high school art via interactive television for Great Western Network.

Alison received her BFA from North Dakota State University in 2009 and her BS in art education from Valley City State University in 2015. Alison participated in numerous student art shows during college and occasionally exhibits work locally. She also creates work out of her home studio and hosts art events at local communities.

Alison works in a variety of media. Oils and traditional drawing media have long been Alison's favorite media; however, she is currently experimenting with layering, mixed media, and collage. This variety of media and materials lends itself well to Alison's process of hiding and revealing concepts in her work.

DSU MIND'S EYE GALLERY

The Dickinson State University art gallery began operation in 1972 by Dennis Navrat, professor of Art at DSU, under the name of Mind's Eye Art Gallery. Previously located in Stoxen Library, the only art gallery in Dickinson at the time was a cooperative venture of the Department of Art, The Badlands Art Association, and Stoxen Library. In August of 1997, the gallery was moved to its present location. Located on the lower level of Klinefelter Hall, the gallery features a variety of fine arts mediums created by visiting artists, local artists, and the university's faculty and students.

The gallery is open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m., Monday thru Friday.

For more information on the gallery or about the Fine Arts program at DSU, contact Mr. Greg Walter at 701-483-2154.

“Looking Forward with BAA”

Jennifer Stone will bring her painting and teaching skills to our summer workshop next year - June 20 - 22, 2019.

Jennifer taught a four-day mixed media and collage workshop in 2016 that was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. We have not yet determined what the topic will be for her time with us - but it will likely be a 3 day workshop.

Art in Action

Remember art in action? Artists sat around a model and painted, sculpted, carved, or drew it while the public watched. Anyone interested in participating during the 2018 show? If you are, make sure to check the box on the entry form so that we can mention you for publicity but we will let anyone try their hand at the process.
